We acknowledge the elders (past, present and future) of the Ngorabul people.

New tennis club leadership team

The Deepwater tennis club is one of several local organisations undergoing generational change, with long-term local residents - who have been an integral part of these groups, and an important part of our community - "passing the baton" to newer members.

The tennis club elected a new executive at their AGM on Saturday 13th July, with President Terry Cunich stepping down and long-term Treasurer Lyn Green also retiring. New office bearers are President Chris McIntosh, Vice President Theresa Carseldine and Treasurer Emma Joseph, with Dwayne Potter continuing as Secretary.

Incoming President Chris McIntosh said there was a lot of enthusiasm amongst the members and he was confident the club would continue to thrive. "We have players with a wide range of ages, experience and ability. We all have a lot of fun and enjoy both the tennis and the social side of the club. Deepwater also has strong connections with Glen Innes and Tenterfield, and I'm hoping we can develop those connections."

The Deepwater club is healthy and hoping to grow and improve. Competitions run throughout the year. There is also casual tennis on Sunday afternoons, which is a great opportunity to play in a less competitive environment and get in some practice. Players of all levels are welcome and encouraged to join in. Courts are available to hire if you'd like to get some friends, family or visitors together for a social game – Contact Foodworks for details and bookings.

"The Deepwater tennis club is a local institution with a long history, but it's also a draw-card for new residents and visitors," said Chris. "We have members who've said they chose to live in Deepwater specifically because of our club, which is an amazing endorsement."

For more information about tennis in Deepwater, speak with Lyn Green at Foodworks, or follow the "Deepwater Tennis Courts" Facebook page.
